Stuart Lewis, Deputy Director of Edinburgh University Library, UK

Bio:

Stuart Lewis is the Deputy Director of Edinburgh University Library, with particular responsibility for proving services to researchers. This includes support for open access, publishing, research data management, and digital collections. Stuart has a background in repository technology and digital libraries, and has worked in large research libraries in both the UK and New Zealand. Stuart has been the Principal Investigator on many grants, and is currently leading funded projects in the areas of best practice in open access, and in research data archiving.
